

Content When You Need a “Mental Break”

News coverage and commentary regarding COVID-19 is everywhere. Every channel, website, email, and glance outside is a constant reminder of this extraordinary situation.

- + When people need a mental break to escape the news, they turn to content that does not feature COVID-19.
- + When placing your brand adjacent to content that’s not related to coronavirus, you’re reaching consumers when they’re in a positive and more relaxed frame of mind and creating a positive brand association.

We’ve built a package to run on our collection of premium publishers. Partner with us to adapt your brand’s strategy to fit these evolving times.

90% of Brits are concerned about the COVID-19 situation.*

The CDC recommends you “Take breaks from watching, reading, or listening to news stories, including social media. Hearing about the pandemic repeatedly can be upsetting.”**

Best Practices

- + The best ads are contextual, adapting to the content environment but also keeping in mind what’s important to your audience right now.
- + Avoid using imagery that features people out of their home, as it’s more difficult for consumers to envision themselves outside given social distancing and self-quarantining.
- + Educate your audience on your brand. Note if you are offering a free trial of your service, or details about your product. Keywords to highlight include: virtual, in home, deal, quick, sale, deal, and free trial.
